TRAUMA INFORMED CARE

Health Brigade began prioritizing a trauma approach to care in 2017 when it joined the Greater Richmond Trauma Informed Community Network. This is about how Health Brigade “does the work” with respect and dignity to all persons without having to know each specific history. Trauma refers to experiences (single event and historical) that cause intense physical and psychological stress reactions. It can refer to “an event, series of events, or set of circumstances that is experienced by an individual as physically or emotionally harmful or threatening and that has lasting adverse effects on the individual’s functioning and physical, social, emotional, or spiritual well-being.”

Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMSHA) defines “a program, organization, or system that is trauma-informed as one that: 1) Realizes the widespread impact of trauma and understands potential paths for recovery; 2) Recognizes the signs and symptoms of trauma in clients, families, staff, and others involved with the system; 3) Responds by fully integrating knowledge about trauma into policies, procedures, and practices; and 4) Seeks to actively resist re-traumatization.”

Being trauma-informed helps everyone. Trauma-informed care helps the person accessing a service (e.g., client/patient) and the person delivering it (e.g., doctor, nurse, therapist) and transforms the service culture itself.

COMPREHENSIVE HARM REDUCTION

In alignment with Health Brigade’s mission to provide exceptional health services to those least served in a caring and non-judgmental environment, the agency approaches our clients, patients, and collaborators with a harm reduction framework. Harm reduction is a framework aimed at reducing stigma and negative consequences associated with drug use and other criminalized activities/behaviors. Foundational to that framework is the respect for people who use drugs and belief in their dignity. Health Brigade’s Needle Exchange promotes the rights and humanity of all people regardless of their substance use. It acknowledges the harms associated with drug use are linked to systemic oppression, criminalization, and stigma.

DIVERSITY, EQUITY, AND INCLUSION

Health Brigade embraces the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation's definition of Health Equity: "Health equity means that everyone has a fair and just opportunity to be as healthy as possible. This requires removing obstacles to health such as poverty, discrimination, and their consequences, including powerlessness and lack of access to good jobs with fair pay, quality education and housing, safe environments, and health care."

Health Brigade welcomes people from all walks of life, recognizing diversity and differences create a more humane and just society. Health Brigade's values guide our organizational commitment to diversity, inclusion, and equity.
